The award of this certificate indicates that you have successfully completed the ALS Course but does not constitute a licence to practise. This is a matter for your employer who may recommend further training. In some situations a disabled candidate might successfully pass all of the theoretical aspects of a course but, due to a disability, be unable to complete all of the physical course requirements. Employers are themselves directly responsible for establishing that their staff have the capabilities requisite to their clinical setting - this is essential in the interests of patient health and safety. Accordingly, they must not rely to any extent on the holding by an individual of a Certificate of Qualification from Resuscitation Council UK as lessening their responsibility in that respect.

This certificate is valid for four years and it is recommended that providers recertify at the end of the four-year period.
